JÖNKÖPING INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS SCHOOL

Welcome to a top-ranked, triple-accredited business school. Globally connected, internationally recognised and closely linked to business and society, we offer high-quality education and an international learning experience for tomorrow's business leaders.

INTERNATIONAL FOCUS

We are the most international business school in Sweden, with around 50 per cent of programme students and faculty coming from other countries. This diversity enriches the learning environment, strengthens cross-cultural collaboration, and prepares you for a global career.

TRIPLE-ACCREDITED AND TOP-RANKED

Jönköping International Business School is one of the few business schools worldwide holding triple accreditation – a clear mark of exceptional quality and international credibility. Consistently ranked among Europe's leading business schools by the Financial Times, your exchange studies gain strong global recognition and added value for future academic and professional opportunities.

THE SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING

Applied learning, technological innovation, and close industry collaboration form the foundation of our education at the School of Engineering. We prepare students to design solutions to global challenges through hands-on practice, project-based learning and internationally oriented studies.

INDUSTRY PARTNERSHIPS AND PROJECT LEARNING

Collaboration with companies such as Saab, Volvo, Scania, and Husqvarna Group ensures that your studies remain closely connected to real-world engineering needs. Project-based learning integrates theory with practical application and builds professional competence valued worldwide. JTH is also a member of the international CDIO initiative.

GLOBAL TECHNOLOGY AND SUSTAINABLE INNOVATION

Exchange students can tailor their studies through a wide range of English-taught bachelor's and master's courses, spanning areas such as AI, product development, materials engineering, cybersecurity, and sustainable production – all central to the future of global technology and sustainable development.

THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION AND COMMUNICATION

Shaping learning, communication and societal development, the School of Education and Communication brings together education, media, global studies, and HR in a research-informed, practice-oriented environment with a strong international outlook.

INTERNATIONAL AND INTERDISCIPLINARY

We combine openness, creativity and close teacher–student interaction. Students and faculty from many countries contribute to a collaborative academic environment that values dialogue, critical thinking and personal development.

SUSTAINABILITY IN SOCIETY

Through our teaching and research, we explore sustainability from social sciences and humanities perspectives, examining how globalisation, digitalisation, communication and working life drive societal change. Exchange students can choose from a broad range of English-taught courses that combine theoretical insight with practical tools for understanding and engaging with today's rapidly changing world.

THE SCHOOL OF HEALTH AND WELFARE

The School of Health and Welfare is one of Sweden's leading educators in health sciences, healthcare and social work, offering programmes grounded in high-quality research and extensive collaboration with regional and international health organisations.

INTEGRATED LEARNING ENVIRONMENT

We bring Swedish and international students together in shared courses, creating a global learning environment that strengthens cultural understanding and prepares students for professional work in diverse care and welfare contexts.

RESEARCH-DRIVEN HEALTH EDUCATION

Our research is widely published in international journals, and our programmes reflect current developments in health and welfare. We offer a wide selection of English-taught bachelor's and master's courses that enable international students to explore global challenges in health care and social care. Modern facilities and strong academic expertise support their learning and help them build skills for future professional practice.
